DAY'S PRIZEWINNERS. The eighth annual Poultry and Pigeon Show omes to an end to-day and Madison Square Garden will close its doors for another year to the stately Wyandottes, Brahmas, Plymouth Rocks and Coch-ins, the dainty game bantams, the beautiful pheasants and fantall pigeons, and the noisy turkeys and geese, that have filled the building with their clamer n the last three days. The incubators and artificial brooders and feeders, which have interested so many visitors to the show will pass away also, so many the farmyard fowl, the quall, rabbits and guinea-pigs, all of which it behooves the enterprising New-Yorker to see, since they form a col-lection that he does not often see under one roof.

The attendance at the Garden has been growing tay by day. The restaurant was the most crowded newly hatched chickens were in great favor with he visitors, and one of the owners, who advertised to sell chicks at 25 cents apiece, disposed of his entire stock in a short time, and had to borrow more from his neighbor. The observing visitor at the show will notice two points about the poultry exhibits. One is the wide variety in color, plumage, size, build and points which they display. The other is the way in which certain breeds seem to grade into each other, so that the difference between them is hardly noticeable at first glance. This last fact is illustrated by the Barred Plymouth Rock and American Dominique cocks. The former have the single and the latter the rose comb, and to all but experts this seems the only point of difference between them. The Bearded Golden Pollsh cock is an example of a peculiar variety. He is a large bird, with sturdy spurs, clean legs and a topknot like an ariliquated feather-duster, overshadowing a large comb, whech he when he was contract the pupil in the presence of light, as in men of normal sight, and the image on his reiturn on an electric light in a corner of the room and held up a small instrument, through which it is possible for an expert to catch the reflection of a strong light and even decipher an image on the returned on an electric light in a corner of the room and held up a small instrument, through which it is possible or an expert to catch the reflection of a strong light and even decipher an image on the returned on an electric light in a corner of the room and held up a small instrument, through which it is possible or an expert to catch the reflection of a strong light and even decipher an image on the returned on the legs of the persons he examines.

AT THE TOP OF HIS POLITICAL FORTUNE.

It does not follow, however, from the failure of the Choate demonstration, that no good will come of it by-and-by. We think it will do good in the course of the coming two or three years. It marks the beginning of organized resistance to the domi-nancy of Platt and the forces arrayed under his banner. From this time forth Mr. Platt will be found to lose strength slowly.

CHARLES BROADWAY ROUSS'S SUBSTITUTE SEES A GLIMMER OF LIGHT THROUGH THEIR AGENCY.

James F. Martin, who has passed the last seventeen years of his life in total darkness, saw a glimmer of light on Thursday afternoon, through the agency of the mysterious cathode ray, discovered by Professor Röntgen. Martin was taken into the office of Dr. David Orr Edson, in the Hotel Majestic, at that time, and seated in front of the physician's electric plant. looked through the fluoroscope at the X-ray globe and caught a glimpse of the light he had been striving to see for the last six months.

Mr. Martin is a chemist, and his blindness was caused by atrophy of the optic nerve. He has been trying experiments of all sorts for about six months on behalf of Charles Broadway Rouss, the millionaire drygoods dealer, who suffers from exactly the same trouble, although not totally blind. Mr. Martin takes the irreatment with the hope of regaining his own sight. According to his arrangement with Mr. Rouss, Mr. Martin tries every prospective cure that Mr. Rouss thinks of taking. When he finds an effectual

Dr. Edson told a Tribune reporter yesterday that his subject was the best that could possibly be found.

"His is the only case I ever knew of," said he physically in the physical statement of the physical statement sician, "where there is atrophy of the optic nerve and the chambers of the eye are in perfect condition at the same time. There is absolutely nothing the matter with the mechanism of his eye. The ciliary muscles contract the pupil in the presence of light,

Dr. Edson will make his next test on the blind man in his office at 5 p. m. to-day. His brother, Dr. Cyrus Edson, who came too late to see the first experiment, is expected to be present at this one.

He lived with his wife in basement rooms of the house, where his wife was the janitress. The couple did not get along well together, and their quarrels were frequent. There was trouble between the Jacob-sons on Wednesday night, when the husband returned home and found another man with his wife. A fight followed, and Jacobson was arrested, but was not punished.

Jacobson was in an amiable mood for a few minutes yesterday morning, and he proposed to his wife that they should move to another house, where they were not known, and live happily together. A fresh fight arose and Jacobson said he was going to break all the furniture. He started in by smashing the bedstead. Then he slapped his wife's face. She went from the rooms and remained away for a few minutes. When she returned, she went into the kitchen, and saw her hus-band standing in his stocking feet on the hearthstone. There was a piece of sash cord tied from his neck to a steam pipe close to the ceiling. The man's situation did not surprise his wife in the least. He had been in the habit of joking in that manner when they had had a quarrel. Jacobson often would tie a rope around his neck and pretend that he had killed himself and wife, an old couple, both more than seventy years old, and Miss Ruth Slack. Flanagan seems to have been in love with Leila Allen, the eleven-year-old granddaughter of Dix n Allen. The sld couple's matried son, G. W. Allen, and his wife and two children lived with them. Flangan had been bouding with them for six months. His actions yetterday were not quite natural. When he had finished supper he asked Mrs. G. W. Allen to give him a drink of water. She left the room to get it. Her husband was standing by the table talking to his father. Flanagan went to his own room, and, returning in a moment, thrust his pistol through a portiere, close to the son's head, and fired. The ball struck him in the back of the head. He fell to the floor. stepped over his body and krocked the lamp from the table with a wave of his pistol. This left the the table with a wave of his pixtor. This left the room in darkness. Old Mrs. Allen, Miss Slack, who was a sister of the younger Mrs. Allen, and the children ran into the next room in terror. Flamagan clubbed the clder Allen to death. Going into the next room, he shit Grandmother Allen and Miss Slack. The daughter-in-law entered just in time to prevent the murler of her daughter, Leita. She clinched with him, and he, struggling to shoot, dragged her out of doors. In the mean time her rusband recovered consciousness, and, together, they overcame Flanagan, and bound him with topes. The Sheriff finally arrived and took the murcicer to the County Lait. The latter would not talk except to say that he was drunk.

HE MAKES UP HIS MIND TO ATTEND THE IVORY TRIAL IN LONDON-LIKELY TO RESIGN REFORE HE GOES.

Assistant District-Attorney John F. McIntyre will be one of the passengers on the Campania, which leaves this port for Liverpool this afternoon. Up to last evening he was undecided as to whether or not he would be obliged to go, but he then re-ceived a cablegram which had been sent to the Irish societies in this city, saying that the trial of Ivory, the alleged dynamite conspirator, now imprisoned in London, could not be postponed. McIntyre is associated with the counsel for the defence, and, as he has information which may upon him to go. He will atrive in London in about nine days, and will at once prepare to defend his citent.

Last evening Mr. McIntyre tendered a farewell reception to his friends. He will this morning consult with District-Attorney Olcott in regard to the advisability of resigning the office of Assistant District-Attorney prior to his departure. seen by a Tribune reporter last evening at his home, No. 1.385 Lexington-ave., Mr. McIntyre spoke as though he was fully determined to offer his resignation to Mr. Olcott. The latter expressed to the

When spoken to about his trip and probable action regarding the Assistant District-Attorneychip, Mr. McIntyre said: "I had hoped that the case might be postponed until February, but I find that this is impossible, and I shall have to go. I shall hand my resignation to Mr. Olcott. He is a good fellow, and I know that he will succeed as District-Attorney of the county of New-York. I don't think that he would ask for my resignation, but I feel that in order not to interfere with public business I ought to offer it so that he could appoint some one else in my place.

"I have been requested by the Irish societies throughout this country to act in behalf of Ivory, and as this is a rare honor for a man of my age and circumstances. I feel that I ought to accept it. From the time that I was first retained as counsel all the papers relating to the case were placed in could be presented better by myself perhaps than by others owing to my knowledge of the case. I feel that Ivory has been the victim of circum-stances and has been wrongfully accused. I have received no money from the Irish societies, and I might be excused from going but from sentiment might be excused from going but from sentiment in the matter. Because there is some of the same blood in my veins as in Ivory's I feel that I should go. I have not had a vacation for two years, and when Colonel Fellows was living I readily obtained permission to go, but, of course, I could not expect Mr. Olcott to follow out the plans of his predecessor, and so I shall hand in my resignation. There have been changes in the office of District-Attorney, and I can realize the position in which Mr. Olcott has been placed.

District-Attorney Olcott, when seen at his home, said he had heard nothing from Mr. Melatyre. "I first learned about Mr. Melatyre is proposed trip at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when I read the report in an afternoon paper," he said, "Mr. Melatyre saw me yesterday, and he then said he would not go, so this is a complete surprise to me. The only way that I can account for the change is that some of the members of the Irish societies may have told Mr. Melatyre last evening that he would be held to his retainer.

"Soon after I became Colonel Fellows's successor General Michael Kerwin and several others came to me and asked me whether I could grant Mr. Melntyre a leave of absence. I told them that I would be unable to do so, because several important homicide cases were about to come up for trial, of which Mr. Melntyre had intimate knowledge, and that I would therefore need his presence. If he offers me his resignation it will be promptly accepted, and his successor will be appointed. I am sorry that he will be inconvenienced."

A LULL IN THE BATTLE.

BOTH SIDES IN THE TAMMANY CONFLICT REST ING ON THEIR ARMS-MORE FIGHT-ING TO COME.

There was a lull yesterday in the internecine battle going on in Tammany Hall between the Clans Sheehan and Purroy, and the chiefs on both sides rected on their arms. But the lieutenants and allies of the combatants were busy with preparations for an early renewal of the deadly conflict. There were bustle and suppressed excitement both at the Wigwam, in East Fourteenth-st., and at the Pequod Club, in West Twenty-fifth-st., where John C. Sheehan's trained warriors met for conference and mutual encouragement.

Finally, she got so enraged at his supposed persistence in not paying any attention to her that she seized a knife and cut the cord. "Now, go in the other room," she commanded, shoving him by the shoulder. The man's form fell over against a washtub. His wife looked more closely at him. His face was becoming black. She then realized that the man had really hanged himself.

The woman dragged the man to a sofa and then ran out for help. Policeman Byrne, of the West Sixty-eighth-st, station, was summoned, and he rang for an ambulance. Some one else ran up the street and summoned Dr. W. D. Bell, of No. 160 West Eighty-third-st. He and the ambulance surse on from Roosevett Hospital arrived about the same time and found the man dead, Jacobson had been employed for some time as a night watchman on a pier. He told his wife on Sunday that he expected to lose his place, and as he had not gone to work for the last two nights she thinks he was discharged, and believes he committed suicide in consequence.

Edey then grassed his bird in this round, and the cup and match were his McAlpin was second; Ireland, third; Butler, fourth, and Murphy, fifth.

SENATOR WOLCOTT'S MISSION.

HE GOES ABROAD IN THE INTEREST OF IN-TERNATIONAL BIMETALLISM.

Senator E. O. Wolcott, of Colorado, who will sail for Europe to-day in the Interest of an International bimetallic agreement, was at the Waldorf yesterday. The Senator intends while abroad to consult with the leading advocates of bimetallism of the Oid World and try to arrange for an international mone tary conference at which some agreement may be entered into that will give a broader recognition to silver. Senator Wolcott, when seen at the hotel yeterday, was not inclined to discusts his plans to any great extent. He deplored the fact that prematurpublicity had been given to his mission, as he hope to keep it quiet until after he reached London and "When I sall to-morrow," he said, "I go alone, and there will be no other missionaries in the olme taille cause with me. I cannot understand how the report came to get around that General Francis A Walker, of Boston, would accompany me on my trip to the other side. So far as I know he never had any intention of going."

Senator Wolcott recently had a long consul-with Major McKinley, and it has been said that his present trip is for the purpose of acting as Major Mcllinley's personal envoy in trying to arrange for an international monetary conference. When asked just how far Major McKinley sanctioned his efforts and what interest the President-elect had in his trip the Senator replied:

"Let us put it in another way. I am going abroad unofficially. I am not the official representative of the Government. I go because I am interested in silver and because the caucus of the Senate Com-mittee requested me to go. Further than that I do not care to say anything. I will report to the Senabecause it is interested. My conference with foreign bimetallists will be entirely unofficial, and nothing because it is interested. My conference with foreign bimetallists will be entirely unofficial, and nothing 1 may say or do will compromise or commit the incoming Administration to any fixed policy. I am looking for information; that is all. The sole object of my visit will be to sound the English sentiment of international bimetallism and to promote, through the bimetallists of English Government to the proposed monetary conference."

There has been a great deal of correspondence of late between the bimetallists of this country and the secretary of the Bimetallists of this country and the secretary of the Bimetallists here to believe that the calling of another international monetary conference may produce results in the way of recognition of silver. Senator Wolcott has received an invitation to visit London and confer with members of the League, and this partially explains his present trip. He said yesterday that he had no idea just whom he would see or what he would say, as all of that is to be determined after he reaches England. It is known that the Senate caucus committee has drafted a bill authorizing the President to appoint representalities to attend an international monetary conference, and Senator Wolcott's trip is believed to be caused by the desire to find out just how far such a conference is practicable. Senator Wolcott says that his trip will be a short one, and that he will be back before Major McKinley is inaugurated. It is said that the President-elect is interested in the proposed conference and would like to see it called early in his Administration.

It is estimated that fully 200,000 children have enjoyed the pleasures made possible by the recent heavy snowfalls. Perfect freedom was allowed them to coast when and where they wished to go, and the snow on every hilistde has been trampled and worn until the grass was in danger of being ruined. It was this danger that prompted the superintendent's orders.

CALLED AN ILLEGAL MONOPOLY.

SUIT FOR THE DISSOLUTION OF THE KANSAS CITT LIVE STOCK EXCHANGE.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 1 .- Suit was begun in the United States Circuit Court here yesterday to dis-solve the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange. The petition was prepared by United States Attorney W. C. Perry, and was signed by Attorney General Harmon. The petition, which is long, charges that the object of the organization is to control the charges for the handling, selling and buying of live stock at the Kansas City Stock Yards, and that its existence restrains trade, is against public policy and is a violation of the Federal and trust laws.

The petition alleges that the Live Stock Exchange and the Stock Yards Company, working together and doing business in common, are operating a monopoly, in that it is impossible for any other than a member of the Exchange to do business in Kan-sas City markets, and are placing an obstruction and embargo on the marketing of all stock shipped from the Western States to the Kansas City market which is not consigned to the Kansas City Stock Yards Company, or to the defendants or other members of the Exchange, who alone are permitted by said Stock Yards Company to transact business by said Stock Yards Company to transact business at its yards. An order is asked dissolving the Liva Stock Exchange and enjoining against the enforcement of the rules of the Exchange.

The application for a temporary injunction in the suit will be heard before Judge Foster of the Federal Court on January 14. This proceeding is the outgrowth of the fight between Greer, Mills & Co. and the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange.
